Overview. The VK series was in production between February 1984 and February 1986 and was the first Commodore to have plastic (polypropylene) bumpers and introduced rear quarter windows for a six-window design (styled by Holden, but similar in appearance to the Opel Senator) as opposed to the four-window design on previous Commodore models. Apart from the bumpers and "glasshouse", other changes ...

Introduction The VK Commodore represented the first major change to the Commodore since the release of the VB in 1978., but it didn't arrive until March 1984 - probably about 12 months later than it should have been launched - but it did have a number of big changes to try to make it more competitive with the Falcon. The most noticeable difference was in the body.
